

Jerzy Bański

DOI: 10.21858/msr.25.03

Vol no: 25

Return to issue

Return to editions list

In the spatial structure of the Mazovian Voivodeship, it is possible, in a very general way, to distinguish two basic elements - Warsaw and the rural areas in its vicinity, and the remaining areas, with sub-regional centers, smaller cities and rural areas. Modern economic structures with innovative production and service industries are concentrated in Warsaw and, to a lesser extent, in Radom and Plock. In the rest of the voivodeship, the primary role is played by the agricultural sector, characterized by great spatial diversity.

Jerzy Bański, Wyzwania rozwojowe na obszarach wiejskich w województwie mazowieckim
Pobierz