This article is devoted to analyzing the status of implementation of projects within the framework of Regional Territorial Investments (RIT) on the example of the Ostrołęka subregion. RIT is a new financing mechanism proposed by the Local Government of the Mazovian Voivodeship for the 2014- 2020 financial perspective, aimed at assisting the development of areas in need of support and strengthening their potential through the development of socio-economic functions. The mechanism came about as a result of a change in the European Union's cohesion policy model, which is to be territorially oriented.
