The article assesses the new situation of the labor market of the Mazowieckie Voivodeship in two spatial dimensions - as a whole and according to the typological division of municipalities. The analysis was made on the basis of estimates of the actual number of jobs and the actual number of employed. The following aspects were examined: the size and structure of the Mazovian market, spatial accessibility of labor markets, spatial differentiation of wages, the role of new and creative enterprises in shaping the labor market, and the level of unemployment. As a result of the study, two features of the labor market in Mazovia stand out.
