

Jakub Botwina

DOI: 10.21858/msr.27.09

Vol no: 27

Return to issue

Return to editions list

The article presents possibilities for recreational development of former freight railroad stations. Two sites located in central parts of cities are presented as examples: the Park am Gleisdreieck in Berlin and the Spoor Noord in Antwerp. Parks that have been developed on former railroad areas have already become part of the city landscape in a special way, preserving the genius loci they have become a place of recreation, as well as an excellent tourist attraction.

Jakub Botwina; Nowe parki na terenach pokolejowych jako element szczególny w krajobrazie Berlina i AntwerpiiPobierz