At the end of 2009, the Polish Civic Forum and the Institute for Market Economy Research published a publication that was small in size (140 pages), but important in content, entitled How to make regions the engines of Poland's development and modernization. The publication mainly contains the texts of speeches at a conference organized by the Polish Senate on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the new voivodeships (also known as regions) and the 20th anniversary of democracy in Poland.
