This paper summarizes some of the most important conclusions of the study of the settlement structure, linkages of subregional centers and socio-economic cohesion of Mazovia, carried out within the framework of the "Development Trends of Mazovia" project. In the context of polycentric development of Mazovia, the structure of settlement distribution is favorable. Central functions in the region are performed by Warsaw, around which five sub-regional centers are located (Radom, Płock, Ostrołęka, Ciechanów, Siedlce) with different development potential.
