

Wojciech Zabłocki

DOI: 10.21858/msr.36.09

Vol. no: 36

Return to issue

Return to editions list

The smog phenomenon and its associated health consequences have now taken center stage in many societies, including Poland. In addition to the prevention of smog formation, the question arises of what impact it may have on urban planning and architectural design. In this article, I attempt to answer the question of what the relationship may be between the fact of smog formation, especially in cities, and the planning and design of sports facilities.

Wojciech Zabłocki, Wpływ smogu na projektowanie obiektów sportowychPobierz